Caloundra gets ready to impress as the Australian Tidy Towns Judge visits

The community of Caloundra has welcomed the arrival of the Australian Tidy Towns Awards Judge, Dick Olesinski today as it vies for the coveted title of Australia's Tidiest Town.

As part of his national judging tour, Olesinski will check out the many projects undertaken within the community that earned Caloundra the prestigious title of Queensland's Tidiest Town in late October. Caloundra takes over the state title from the community of Stanthorpe, which was announced Queensland's Tidiest Town in 2010.

Olesinski will be joined by The Hon Peter Slipper MP, Federal Member for Fisher, and will evaluate Caloundra's many initiatives against the national awards criteria which encompass environmental innovation and protection, water and energy conservation, community partnerships, litter prevention, resource recovery and the preservation of local heritage and culture.

According to Olesinski, "Each of the Tidy Towns national finalists should be extremely proud of their efforts as they provide inspiration and practical case studies that other communities can learn from to protect and preserve their local environment, culture and heritage."

"It's great to see how the dedicated work of individuals, community groups, industry and local councils can successfully come together to achieve positive environmental outcomes that helps to ensure their town and region can move forward sustainably," he added.

Olesinski's tour of Caloundra will start this morning at the Resource Recovery Centre. During his visit, Dick will also visit Lutheran College, have lunch at the Lighthouse and visit a number of local beaches that have been restored by council and volunteers. He will also be shown the preservation work being undertaken to the littoral rainforest areas around the Currimundi Lake.

Following his national tour of the state and territory finalist towns, Olesinski will then face the tough task of deciding who will be crowned Australia's Tidiest Town for 2012. The winner will be announced in June and will take over the national title from New South Wales town of Lithgow.

The Keep Australia Beautiful Australian Tidy Towns Awards are sponsored by the Do the Right Thing Program of the Australian Food and Grocery Council's Packaging Stewardship Forum, and Replas Recycled Plastic Products.
